ISABELLE URQUHARTS EXPLOITS.

Some Stories About the Castne Actress
Who Has Become Guy Standing's Wife. Isabelle Urquhart was an actress of exploits while she figured for several years at the Casino, and writers for the press were reluc-tant to serve her seeming purpose of selfadvertising. Now the news comes that she has become Mrs. Guy Standing. in London. and has retired from the stage. To the studio guild that wedding meant the loss of one of the most beautiful models that ever stood beside an easel. It must not be inferred that the perfectly shaped creature was a profes-aional poser. No model in this country could have earned more money than Isabelle Urquhart. A great number of our figure painters would have been glad to pay her $5 an hour in the studio, but Belle Urguhart was not a mercenary beauty. She loved art for its own sake, and was fond of the society of artists. She had had particular friends among the pupils of Paris and Munich. and when she was not rehearsing at the Casino her afternoons were generally passed sitting beside somebody's easel, watching him paint, enlivening his loneliness by reminiscences of the stage, or discussing compositions for new pictures. She was the author of Madder Brown's reputation. Brown was witty, handsome, and poor when he finished his training in Gérome's atelier and returned to New York to make a liwing. He rented a little studio in a cheap building, and devoted his brushes to everything and anything, from signs to campaign banners, in order to earn enough money to pay expenses. His only tangible posto pay expenses. His only tangible possession of any value was adress suit, which he put on every evening before going out to dine at a molest Italian table d'hôte. This extravegance of garb was remonstrated against by his chum Meglip, who had no dress suit, and strenuously objected to a man eating a 50-cent dinner in the costume of Delmonico's. But Mr. Brown insisted that his fine clothes in the evening enabled him to forget the vicissitudes he had endured during the day, and continued to dress as carefully every afternoon as if he were an expected guest at the Vanderblit's. One night Miss Urquhart, who had the tastes of a gournet as well as the soul of an artist, decided to partake of the spaghetti for which this Italian restaurant was then famed. Accompanied by a party of friends she drove down to the Sixth avenue place and enjoyed the dinner. During its progress she observed among the crowd of long-haired musicians, seedy authors, and devil-may-care artists a young gentleman attired in an immediate evening dress, which seemed absurdly incongruous amid such careless surroundings. "Heaven save us!" she cried laughingly. "He must be the banished earl of melodraima, or an English nobleman who has lost his way.

"Oh," said one of her friends, "that is Madder Brown, a young painter, just home from Paria. He is always in evening dress, and they say that he has no other ciothes to wear, except an old veivet studio suit."

"How derightfull" ejaculated the young actress, gazing admiringly at him through her lorgnette. "I want to know Middler Brown. He is an easie in this Sahara of garlic. Bring him over."

Thereupon, the artist was presented to the session of any value was a dress suit. which

THE BREECHES BUOY.

An Edicient Aid to the Daring Life Savers of the New Jersey Coast,

The sturdy surfmen of Long Beach, as they call the ribbon of sand south of Barnegat In-let separating the waters of the bay and the ocean, have made two gallant rescues in the past week with the Lyle gun and the breeches buoy. The opportunity to use these appliances is always welcomed, because it means a fight with the elements that stirs the blood at times, but these men do not remain very and strains the muscle. Whenever the news that a ship is ashore is telephoned from station to station over the beach wires every surfman within twenty miles says envious things about the lucky patrolmen who are called out to make the rescue. The ordinary routine of hold on the life preserver, and in he goes. The next minute he is on the beach, where a dozen strong hands reach out to pluck him out of his canvas breeches. The buoy is sent straight back for another, and so on until all are rescued. A dozen men have been brought ashore in this by a single breeches buoy in less than an way by a single breeches buoy in less than an hour.

It sometimes happens that a woman is aboard the ship. She may be the Captain's wifa. If the ship is a steamer, there may be women passengers. The idea of gettling into this pair of canvas breeches may be repugnant to a woman, but she does not hesitate a second. Pulling her dress up around her, in she steps as unhesitatingly as though she were born to trousers. All she asks at that moment is to get ashore.

There have been many devices for rescuing the shipwrecked, including the life car with which the stations on our coast are provided, but no other appliance is of such tried utility as the breeches buoy.

HELD THE CHILD FOR MORE MONEY. Mrs. Castronova and Her Charge Fall in with an Exacting Landlord.

Felicia Castronova arrived here a week ago on her way to Lyons, this State, to join her husband. Although only 17 years old she is the mother of a year-and-a-half-old son. She brought with her Angelina Vallechando, a 7-year-old girl, whose brother is also at Lyona. A runner for the Italian boarding house at 88 James street met the woman on the steamer and induced her to go to his place. The next day she was taken to 41 Oliver street. A remittance of $12 was received for her at the Ninth National Bank on Friday, and the bank's messenger was sent out to find her. The people at 88 James street said they did not know her whereabouts, and the messenger went to the Oak street station. Policeman Webb was detailed to accompany him. They found her in the Oliver street house. She had become suspicious of the people there and was about to leave, when the proprietor demanded $4.50 additional board for the little girl, and had locked her up until the money should be Castronova showed Webb the room the child was, and he threatened to Mrs. Castronova showed Webb the room where the child was, and he threatened to break open the door if she was not released, but two Italians seized him and put him out of the house. After summoning assistance Webb got the girl, and, gathering the woman's belonging, she and the two children with the two men were taken to the Tombs.

By Justice Ryan's direction the money was given to Joe Renoldi, the court interpreter, who was told to find a place for the woman over night, see her safely on the train for Lyons in the morning, and then to hand her the money. The Justice directed that the expense should be charged to him. Then turning to the two men Justice Ryan arose and shaking his finger at them said:

"If you are ever brought before me again on any charge. I will give you the full penalty. Now get out."

MRS. SCOTT AGAIN TAKES A CAR.

She Was Going to Atlantic City, but Got No Further Than the Yorkville Court. Mrs. Jennie A. Scott, who three weeks ago told Superintendent Byrnes that she had be robbed by Cabman Pike, appeared before Justice Meade, in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday morning. in charge of Detective O'Donohue, who had arrested her late on Friday afternoon for creating a disturbance in the street. Mrs. Scott has been staying at the house of Dr. Charles Bogart, 151 East Fifty-first street. On Friday she hired a cabman to drive her down town, and when the cab reached its destination Mrs. heout refused to get out. The cabman drove back to Fifty-first street. Again the woman refused to get out. and her loud talking drew a curious crowd. In the cab was found a small travelling bag, containing over $2,000 worth of money and jewelry. Dr. Bogart told the Justice that Mrs. Scott had been at his house for two weeks, and intended to leave for a sanitarium in Atlantic City on the 1:45 train. Her trunks had already been forwarded by express.

"I guess you've been indulging in a protracted spree, haven't you?" asked the Justice. "Some people call it that," she replied. Mrs. Scott wept, and said she wanted to go to Atlantic City. Upon the Doctor's promise to put her on the train, the Justice discharged the prisoner. house of Dr. Charles Bogart, 151 East Fifty-

PAROCHIAL AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Who is Sending These Suggestions for Leg-

Printed slips are being received through the sails by ciergymen, educators, and prominent laymen of every creed. These slips contain auggestions for legislation on the school question, and apparently express the views held by Archbishop Ireland on that subject. It is said that these slips are being circulated throughout the whole country. Following is a copy of one of them received in this city: 1. The city and State might affiliate paro-

1. The city and State might affiliate parochial schools to the public schools, the secular education being under the State or City Superintendent.

2. The parochial school buildings might be rented at a nominal price to the State.
